About Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton

CHARTER DAY

Since its founding, Seton Hall has made, and continues to make, moral education a priority of the first rank.

— *Seton Hall University
Statement on Catholicity*

Living out the commitment to moral education has been the foundation of Seton Hall University for more than 160 years — and continues to be our mission in the 21st century. Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton Charter Day offers our community an opportunity to reflect on the University’s great history, and to renew our commitment to that purpose and mission. Charter Day commemorates the granting of a charter to Seton Hall College by the State of New Jersey in 1861.

Today the University will honor the recipients of the Bishop Bernard J. McQuaid Medal for Distinguished Service. This award recognizes the unflagging efforts of members of the University community who strive with excellence to fulfill Seton Hall’s mission every day. Commissioned in 1964 in honor of the first president of Seton Hall, the medal is presented to members of the University faculty, staff and administration who render outstanding service to the institution.

A complete synopsis of Seton Hall’s history can be found on the Charter Day web site: www.shu.edu/charter-day

Alyssa McCloud, Ph.D.

Executive Vice President for Enrollment Management and Recruitment

Alyssa McCloud, Ph.D., has served as the vice president for enrollment management at Seton Hall University since 2011. She also served as director of admissions and international programs at Seton Hall from 1998 – 2005. During the intervening years, McCloud served as vice president for enrollment at Drew University and Felician College.

During McCloud’s tenure she led Seton Hall to tremendous enrollment success, resulting in a 20 percent increase in undergraduate enrollment and several of the largest incoming classes in university history. Simultaneously, the University has raised its SAT average considerably and attracted a diverse student body – 45% students of color, 30% Pell eligible and 35% first-generation.

McCloud has also been instrumental in establishing the RISE program to support the success of first-generation, Pell eligible students and has enhanced transparency and communication around financial aid. She created the model financial aid shopping sheet that was adopted state-wide in New Jersey and praised for creating a transparent financial aid experience for students.

McCloud also served as Co-chair of the University’s Harvest Our Treasures strategic plan. She is an active member of the Enrollment management community who has served on the College Board’s Admissions Advisory Board, as a trainer for the NACUBO leadership program and the College Board’s Leadership Academy.

She holds a B.A. in humanities with a concentration in philosophy from Antioch College, as well as two graduate degrees from Seton Hall, an M.A. in corporate and public communications (2004) and a Ph.D. in higher educational leadership, management and policy (2009).

2025 McQuaid Medal Recipients

Latisha Porter-Vaughn, Ph.D.

Legal Support Specialist

Latisha Porter, Ph.D., has dedicated 35 years to Seton Hall University School of Law, with 30 of those years supporting faculty and, most recently, serving in the Center for Social Justice, where she provides critical administrative support. She has also been a longtime shop steward for Seton Hall Union Local 153, advocating for fair workplace policies and employee rights.

Porter holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from the University of Maryland, a Master's in Strategic Communication from Seton Hall University and a Ph.D. in Organizational Development and Leadership from the University of Arizona Global Campus, where she was honored as Alumni of the Year in 2023.

Beyond academia, Porter is a dedicated advocate for the deaf and hard-of-hearing community. She serves as the President of the Hearing Loss Association of America New Jersey State Chapter and is the co-founder of the HLAA Essex County Chapter. Her contributions to hearing loss awareness and education earned her the 2023 Oticon Focus on People Award.

A 14-time self-published author, Dr. Porter has written impactful works, including Sounds of the Heart: A Story of a Hearstrong Champion Persisting Against All Odds, How We Hear: A Useful Guide to Help the Hearing Understand Hearing Loss, Whispered Journeys: Spoken Softly but Loudly Understood, and The Mighty Hearoes: Tales of Deaf and Hard of Hearing Champions — a groundbreaking 10-book children's series.

Her career and advocacy reflect an unwavering commitment to education, inclusivity, and leadership, making her a true champion for social justice and accessibility.

John T. Saccoman, Ph.D.

Professor, Program Adviser for Mathematics and Chair

John T. Saccoman joined the faculty in 1992 as a member of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department. However, his association with Seton Hall University began long ago. His father, the late Dr. John J.

Saccoman, was the chair of the Math and Computer Science Department and was also a Seton Hall Alum and recipient of the McQuaid Medal. A 1986 graduate of the Mathematics Department and Honors Program, JT and his father commuted to campus where he attended Seton Hall Prep when it was part of the Seton Hall campus.

Saccoman was promoted to Professor in 2009. In addition to his teaching duties, he has co-authored and mentored more than fifty research publications, made more than eighty research presentations, and co-authored five books. Many of the co-authored papers are with Seton Hall undergraduates; he has supervised dozens of undergraduate theses. Through his work with the Seton Hall-Stevens Graph Theory Research Group (receiving his doctorate from Stevens in 1995), he served as a committee member for seven math Ph.D. theses at Stevens Institute of Technology.

John has served as chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department since 2010. In that time, he has overseen the reinstatement of the Computer Science program, provided support for the Business school's Mathematical Finance and Quantitative Economics majors and, along with Kristi Luttrell, Ph.D., oversaw the creation of both the Financial Mathematics major and its combined BS/MS 4+1 program with Stevens. In addition to his department record, John has chaired the Arts and Sciences EPC and Rank and Tenure Committee, co-chaired the Senate APC, and chaired the University Rank and Tenure Committee. Along with Assistant Provost Leigh Onimus, he co-chaired the successful Middle States reaccreditation self-study from 2021-2024.

When not at Seton Hall, John enjoys quality time with his wife of 31 years, Mary Erin and attending sporting events (Seton Hall basketball, Giants, Mets, Rangers games) with his son Ryan, who resides in Malden, Massachusetts.

Mary Mueller, Ed.D.

Associate Professor; College of Human Development, Culture, and Media

Mary Mueller, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor at Seton Hall University and director of the Elementary and Special Education program. Her main research interests are focused on the development of mathematical reasoning and equity through reasoning tasks in K-12 students. More specifically, Mueller's work focuses on analyzing students' collaborative construction of arguments and its interplay with agency, the teacher's role and task design in promoting reasoning, and the roles of fallacious arguments and mistakes in making sense of mathematics. Her work has been published in peer-reviewed journals, including Educational Studies in Mathematics, International Journal for Studies in Mathematics Education, Journal of Mathematical Behavior, Mathematics Education Research Journal, and The Mathematics Educator; as well as in two of the official journals of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics: Teaching Children Mathematics, and Mathematics Teaching in the Middle School.

Mueller combined her research on math education and teacher preparation to examine the collaboration between teachers and families in supporting children's literacy and mathematics learning. In 2016 and 2017, she co-published two books with her partner, Alisa Hindin, which focused on parent involvement in math and literacy. She is a former recipient of the Seton Hall University Teacher of the Year Award and the University's Researcher of the Year Award.

Prior to coming to Seton Hall, Mueller was a New York City public school math and science teacher and elementary mathematics coach. In addition, she provided coaching in mathematics to elementary and middle school teachers in New York City and New Jersey.

Keynote Speaker

Catherine O'Donnell, Ph.D.

Professor, Arizona State University

Catherine O'Donnell is Professor of History at Arizona State University and the author of Elizabeth Seton: American Saint (Cornell University Press, 2018), which won the Distinguished Book Award from the Conference on the History of Women Religious and the Biography Prize from the Catholic Press Association. She has also written Jesuits in the British and North American Colonies: Faith, Conflict, Adaptation (Brill, 2018) and Men of Letters in the Early Republic (Chapel Hill, 2008). Her research has been published in journals such as William and Mary Quarterly, Journal of the Early Republic, and Early American Literature.

O'Donnell's deep connection to Elizabeth Seton began unexpectedly while she was teaching at William and Mary. A student's choice to write about Seton, rather than the usual founding figures, intrigued O'Donnell. Growing up Catholic, she knew Seton's name but hadn't considered her as a historical subject. As she guided the student, O'Donnell realized there hadn't been a biography of Seton in years. What began as a brief article idea soon turned into a years-long project, reflecting O'Donnell's growing admiration for Seton's resilience and faith. For O'Donnell, Seton's story resonated personally, blending her academic work with her own Catholic identity. Now, as a historian, O'Donnell teaches early American history and serves as Associate Director of the Institute for Humanities Research at ASU.
