

The Center for Faculty Development encourages faculty who are retired, about to retire, or contemplating retirement in the near future to join the newly developed Seton Hall University Faculty Retirement Group led by Chrys Grieco. The group will implement activities and opportunities that would help both retirees and the University including: retiree faculty benefits, investment opportunities, parking tags, lunch time meetings, occasional teaching or adjunct teaching for a semester, and more.

This group has been modeled after such groups at other universities in New Jersey. The SHU Faculty Retirement Group hopes to encourage continued contact between faculty and the university to their mutual benefit. Faculty should expect to receive clear, up-to-date, information on benefits, and the university will gain a loyal group able to contribute in various ways.

If interested, please send your current email or other contact information to Chrys Grieco, chair of Faculty Retirement Group (chrysanthy.grieco@shu.edu) or Mary Balkun, Director of Faculty Development (mary.balkun@shu.edu).
